

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388
(Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

Supreme Court, Suffolk County, New York.
Kathleen ROMANO, Plaintiff,
v.

STEELCASE INC. and Educational & Institutional
Cooperative Services Inc., Defendants.

Sept. 21, 2010.

Background: Plaintiff brought personal injury action against defendant. Defendant filed motion for access to plaintiff's social network accounts.

Holdings: The Supreme Court, Suffolk County, Jeffrey Arlen Spinner, J., held that:

- (1) private information sought from plaintiff's social networking website accounts was material and necessary for defendant's defense;
- (2) plaintiff did not have a reasonable expectation of privacy in information published on social networking websites; and
- (3) defendant's need for access to plaintiff's private information on social networking websites outweighed any privacy concerns voiced by plaintiff.

Motion granted.

West Headnotes

[1] Pretrial Procedure 307A 19

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak19 k. Discretion of court. Most

Cited Cases

Pretrial Procedure 307A 31

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak31 k. Relevancy and materiality.

Most Cited Cases

Trial courts have broad discretion in the supervision of discovery, and in determining what is material and necessary, requiring full disclosure. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[2] Pretrial Procedure 307A 31

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak31 k. Relevancy and materiality.

Most Cited Cases

The “material and necessary” standard for full disclosure of all non-privileged matter is to be interpreted liberally requiring disclosure of any facts bearing on the controversy which will assist preparation for trial by sharpening the issues and reducing delay and prolixity; the test is one of usefulness and reason. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[3] Pretrial Procedure 307A 11

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak11 k. Control by court in general.

Most Cited Cases

Each discovery request is to be decided on a case-by-case basis keeping in mind the strong public policy in favor of open disclosure. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[4] Pretrial Procedure 307A 32

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak32 k. Probable admissibility at trial.

Most Cited Cases

If information sought in a discovery request is sufficiently related to the issues in litigation so as to make the effort to obtain it in preparation for trial reasonable, then discovery should be permitted; it is immaterial that the information sought may not be admissible at trial as pretrial discovery extends

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388
(Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

not only to proof that is admissible but also to matters that may lead to the disclosure of admissible proof. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[5] Pretrial Procedure 307A  451

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(F) Examination of Person

307Ak451 k. In general. Most Cited Cases

Plaintiffs who place their physical condition in controversy, may not shield from disclosure material which is necessary to the defense of the action. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[6] Pretrial Procedure 307A  36.1

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(A) Discovery in General

307Ak36 Particular Subjects of Disclosure

Cases

307Ak36.1 k. In general. Most Cited

In an action seeking damages for personal injuries, discovery is generally permitted with respect to materials that may be relevant both to the issue of damages and the extent of a plaintiff's injury including a plaintiff's claim for loss of enjoyment of life. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[7] Pretrial Procedure 307A  371

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(E) Production of Documents and Things and Entry on Land

307AII(E)3 Particular Documents or Things

307Ak371 k. Documents, papers, and books in general. Most Cited Cases

Private information sought from plaintiff's social networking website accounts was material and necessary for defendant's defense of plaintiff's personal injury claims, where plaintiff claimed that due to her injuries she was largely confined to bed, but public photo showed her outside the home, and private information purportedly contained further contradictions to plaintiff's claims. McKinney's CPLR 3101.

[8] Pretrial Procedure 307A  371

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(E) Production of Documents and Things and Entry on Land

307AII(E)3 Particular Documents or Things

307Ak371 k. Documents, papers, and books in general. Most Cited Cases

Plaintiff did not have a reasonable expectation of privacy in information published on social networking websites, and therefore, disclosure was warranted of private information to defendant in plaintiff's personal injury action, where plaintiff consented to the fact that the information would be shared when she created the accounts.

[9] Pretrial Procedure 307A  371

307A Pretrial Procedure

307AII Depositions and Discovery

307AII(E) Production of Documents and Things and Entry on Land

307AII(E)3 Particular Documents or Things

307Ak371 k. Documents, papers, and books in general. Most Cited Cases

Defendant's need for access to plaintiff's private information on social networking websites in plaintiff's personal injury action outweighed any privacy concerns voiced by plaintiff, where information was relevant to the issue of damages and could disprove plaintiff's claims, and defendant attempted other methods, such as deposition, to obtain information, but was unsuccessful.

*651 Kelner & Kelner, Esqs, New York City.

Gallagher Gosseen Faller & Crowley, Esqs, Garden City.

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388
 (Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

John T. Ryan & Associates, Riverhead City.

Orrick Herrington & Sutcliffe LLP, New York City.

JEFFREY ARLEN SPINNER, J.

427 ORDERED, that Defendant STEELCASE's motion is hereby granted as set forth herein below.

Defendant STEELCASE moves this Court for an Order granting said Defendant access to Plaintiff's current and historical Facebook and MySpace pages and accounts, including all deleted pages and related information upon the grounds that Plaintiff has placed certain information on these social networking sites which are believed to be inconsistent with her claims in this action concerning the extent and nature of her injuries, especially her claims for loss of enjoyment of life.

The present application was brought on by Order to Show Cause. The Court has *652 reviewed the submissions both in favor of and in opposition to the relief sought, as well as the applicable federal statutory law, specifically the Stored Communications Act, 18 U.S.C. § 2701 et seq., which prohibits an entity, such as Facebook and MySpace from disclosing such information without the consent of the owner of the account (see, 18 U.S.C. § 2702(b)(3); Flagg v. City of Detroit, 252 F.R.D. 346 [E.D. Mich.2008]).

SCOPE OF PERMISSIBLE DISCOVERY

[1][2] Pursuant to CPLR 3101, there shall be full disclosure of all non-privileged matter which is material and necessary to the defense or prosecution of an action. To this end, trial courts have broad discretion in the supervision of discovery, and in determining what is “material and necessary” (see: Allen v. Crowell–Collier Pub. Co., 21 N.Y.2d 403, 288 N.Y.S.2d 449, 235 N.E.2d 430 [1968]; Andon v. 302–304 Mott Street Assocs., 94 N.Y.2d 740, 709 N.Y.S.2d 873, 731 N.E.2d 589 [2000]; Cabellero v. City of New York, 48 A.D.3d

727, 853 N.Y.S.2d 165 (2 Dept. 2008). Within the context of discovery, “necessary” has been interpreted as meaning “needful and not indispensable” (see: Allen at 407, 288 N.Y.S.2d 449, 453, 235 N.E.2d 430). The “material and necessary” standard is to be interpreted liberally requiring disclosure of “any facts bearing on the controversy which will assist preparation for trial by sharpening the issues and reducing delay and prolixity. The test is one of usefulness and reason” (see: Allen, supra; Andon, supra; Hoenig v. Westphal, 52 N.Y.2d 605, 439 N.Y.S.2d 831, 422 N.E.2d 491 [1981] (pre-trial discovery is to be encouraged, limited only by the test of materiality of “usefulness and reason”)).

[3][4] 428 Each discovery request is to be decided on a case-by-case basis keeping in mind the strong public policy in favor of open disclosure (see: Andon at 747, 709 N.Y.S.2d 873, 878, 731 N.E.2d 589). If the information sought is sufficiently related to the issues in litigation so as to make the effort to obtain it in preparation for trial reasonable, then discovery should be permitted (see: Allen at 406–407, 288 N.Y.S.2d 449, 452, 235 N.E.2d 430; In re Beryl, 118 A.D.2d 705, 499 N.Y.S.2d 980 [2 Dept. 1986]). It is immaterial that the information sought may not be admissible at trial as “pretrial discovery extends not only to proof that is admissible but also to matters that may lead to the disclosure of admissible proof” (see: Twenty Four Hour Fuel Oil Corp. v. Hunter Ambulance Inc., 226 A.D.2d 175, 640 N.Y.S.2d 114 [1 Dept. 1996]; Polygram Holding Inc. v. Cafaro, 42 A.D.3d 339, 839 N.Y.S.2d 493 [1 Dept. 2007] (disclosure extends not only to admissible proof but also to testimony or documents which may lead to the disclosure of admissible proof including materials which may be used in cross-examination”)).

INFORMATION SOUGHT FROM INTERNET SITES

[5][6] Plaintiffs who place their physical condition in controversy, may not shield from disclosure material which is necessary to the defense of the action (see: Hoenig v. Westphal, supra). Accordingly, in an action seeking damages for personal injuries, discovery is generally permitted with respect to materials that may be relevant both to the issue of damages and the extent of a plaintiff's injury (see: Walker v. City of New York, 205 A.D.2d 755, 614 N.Y.S.2d 31 [2 Dept. 1994]). including a plaintiff's claim for loss of enjoyment of life (see: Orlando v. Richmond Precast Inc., 53 A.D.3d 534, 861 N.Y.S.2d 765 [2 Dept. 2008]) (in an action to recover damages for personal injuries, records sought were material and necessary to the defense 653 regarding plaintiff's claim of loss of enjoyment of life); Vanalst v. City of New York, 276 A.D.2d 789, 715 N.Y.S.2d 422 [2 Dept. 2000]; Mora v. St. Vincent's Catholic Med. Ctr., 8 Misc.3d 868, 800 N.Y.S.2d 298 [Sup. Ct. NY. Co. 2005].

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388
 (Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

Thus, in Sgambelluri v. Recinos, 192 Misc.2d 777, 747 N.Y.S.2d 330 [Sup. Ct. Nassau Co. 2002], an action arising out of a motor vehicle accident, the court held that plaintiff's wedding video taken two years after the incident was clearly relevant to the claim of permanency of injuries. As a result of the accident, plaintiff alleged that she sustained permanent injuries to her neck and back, and testified at her deposition that she can no longer participate in certain activities such as running or horseback riding. Defendant sought a copy of her wedding video on the basis that it might have shown plaintiff in various activities such as dancing, which would be relevant to the claims. Plaintiff objected on *429 the basis of the personal nature of the video. The court decided in favor of disclosure noting its relevancy to the claim of permanency of injuries. In so finding, the court reasoned that although the video is not a surveillance tape, as contemplated by CPLR § 3101(i), its:

[L]anguage is broad enough to encompass any film, photograph or videotape ... involving a person referred to in paragraph one of subdivision (a), i.e., a party. This is consistent with the general policy of New York courts allowing liberal disclosure. Moreover, the 1993 addition of subdivision (i) only strengthens the argument for open disclosure. Id. at 779, 747 N.Y.S.2d 330, 332 (internal quotations omitted).

Like the plaintiff in Sgambelluri, Plaintiff herein also claims she sustained permanent injuries as a result of the incident and that she can no longer participate in certain activities or that these injuries have effected her enjoyment of life. However, contrary to Plaintiff's claims, Steelcase contends that a review of the public portions of Plaintiff's MySpace and Facebook pages reveals that she has an active lifestyle and has traveled to Florida and Pennsylvania during the time period she claims that her injuries prohibited such activity. In light of this, Defendant sought to question Plaintiff at her deposition regarding her MySpace and Facebook accounts, to no avail and following those depositions, served Plaintiff with a Notice for Discovery & Inspection requesting, inter alia, "authorizations to obtain full access to and copies of Plaintiff's current and historical records/information on her Facebook and MySpace accounts." Plaintiff has refused to provide the requested authorizations.

Both Facebook and MySpace are social networking sites where people can share information about their personal lives, including posting photographs and sharing information about what they are doing or thinking. Indeed, Facebook policy states that "it helps you share information with your friends and people around you," and that "Facebook is about sharing information with others." FN1 Likewise, MySpace is a "social networking service that allows Members to create unique personal profiles online in order to find and communicate with old and news friends;" and, is self-described as an "online community" where "you can share photos, journals and interests with your growing network *430 of mutual friends," FN2 and, as a "global lifestyle 654 portal that reaches millions of people around the world." FN3 Both sites allow the user to set privacy levels to control with whom they share their information.

FN1. Facebook Principles- http: www. facebook. com/ policy. php (last visited April 3, 2009).

FN2. About Us–MySpace.com/index.dfm?fuseaction=misc.aboutus (last visited June 16, 2009).

FN3. MySpace Safety Highlights- <http://www.myspace.com/index.cfm?frseaction=cms.veiwpage&placement=safety> (last visited June 18, 2009).

[7] The information sought by Defendant regarding Plaintiff's Facebook and MySpace accounts is both material and necessary to the defense of this action and/or could lead to admissible evidence. In this regard, it appears that Plaintiff's public profile page on Facebook shows her smiling happily in a photograph outside the confines of her home despite her claim that she has sustained permanent injuries and is largely confined to her house and bed. In light of the fact that the public portions of Plaintiff's social networking sites contain material that is contrary to her claims and deposition testimony, there is a reasonable likelihood that the private portions of her sites may contain further evidence such as information with regard to her activities and enjoyment of life, all of which are material and relevant to the defense of this action. Preventing Defendant from accessing to Plaintiff's private postings on Facebook and MySpace would be in direct contravention to the liberal disclosure policy in New York State.

Although there is no New York case law directly addressing the issues raised by this application, there are instructive cases from other jurisdictions. Recently, in Ledbetter v. Wal-Mart Stores Inc., (06-cv-01958-WYD-MJW, 2009 WL 1067018 [D. Colo. April 21, 2009]), defendant store sought, via subpoena, production of the content of plaintiffs' social networking sites.^{FN4} Information contained on the public access areas contradicted plaintiffs allegations regarding the effect of their injuries on their daily lives. When the networking sites refused to provide the information absent plaintiffs' consent or request, defendant moved to compel production and plaintiffs moved for a protective order. Both plaintiffs had claimed physical and psychological injuries as a result of the accident which gave rise to lawsuit. By Order dated April 21, 2009, Magistrate Judge Watnabe denied plaintiffs' motion and held that the information sought by the subpoenas *431 was "reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence and is relevant to the issues in the case."

FN4. Facebook, MySpace and Meetup.com

Likewise, in Leduc v. Roman, 2009 CarswellOnt 843 (February 20, 2009), a matter pending in the Superior Court of Justice, Ontario, Canada, defendant also requested production of the plaintiff's Facebook pages, including, private pages. Plaintiff claimed that as a result of injuries allegedly sustained in a car accident, his enjoyment for life had lessened. Canadian law requires that each party disclose every document relating to any matter in the action over which he has possession or control absent a claim of privilege. Plaintiff had failed to disclose the information which defendant only learned about following a defense psychiatric examination. After only being able to access the limited portions of plaintiff's public profile page, defendant sought an order requiring production of all site materials as well as preservation of the materials. The decision denying the request was reversed on appeal, with the appellate court disagreeing that defendant was on a fishing expedition. In this regard, Judge Brown noted that it was "beyond controversy" that a person's Facebook pages may contain relevant documents (at ¶ 23); that other Canadian655 cases had permitted into evidence photographs posted on a person's Facebook page showing them engaged in activities despite their claim to the contrary; and, it is reasonable to infer from the social networking purpose of Facebook, that even if a person only maintains a private profile with the public profile merely listing their name, that relevant information exists on their limited-access private pages (at ¶ 36). In deciding to permit the examination into the private Facebook profile, the court set forth:

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388

(Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

To permit a party claiming very substantial damages for loss of enjoyment of life to hide behind self-set privacy controls on a website, the primary purpose of which is to enable people to share information about how they lead their social lives, risks depriving the opposite party of access to material that may be relevant to ensuring a fair trial.

(see also: Kent v. Laverdiere, 2009 CanLII 16741 (ON S.C., April 14, 2009) (as plaintiff asserted that accident disfigured her and lessened her enjoyment of life, any photos on Facebook or MySpace showing her in healthy state, enjoying life, would be relevant); Bishop v. Minichiello, 2009 BCSC 358 (CanLII, April 7, 2009) (defendant's motion for production of *432 plaintiff's computer's harddrive so it could analyze how much time plaintiff spent on Facebook granted as the information sought was relevant to the issues in the case); Goodridge v. King, 2007 CanLII 51161 (ON S.C. October 30, 2007) (in action in which plaintiff claimed various injuries including loss of enjoyment of life and disfigurement following a car accident, photos posted by plaintiff on her Facebook account was evidence to the contrary, showing her socializing and dating); Kourtesis v. Horis, 2007 CanLII 39367 (ON S.C. September 24, 2007) (in proceeding concerning costs, court noted that during trial, Facebook photos of plaintiff were important element of case; apparently plaintiff testified that she no longer had a social life because of her injuries, yet the photographs taken after the accident, showed her at a party) ^{FN5} .

^{FN5}. See, Charles Foster, Uncovering the Truth: Social Networks are a Treasure Trove of Information, Claims Canada, October/November 2008, <http://www.claims-canada.ca>. (last viewed June 18, 2009).

Thus, it is reasonable to infer from the limited postings on Plaintiff's public Facebook and MySpace profile pages, that her private pages may contain materials and information that are relevant to her claims or that may lead to the disclosure of admissible evidence. To deny Defendant an opportunity access to these sites not only would go against the liberal discovery policies of New York favoring pre-trial disclosure, but would condone Plaintiff's attempt to hide relevant information behind self-regulated privacy settings.

PLAINTIFF'S PRIVACY CONCERNS

[8] Production of Plaintiff's entries on her Facebook and MySpace accounts would not be violative of her right to privacy ^{FN6}, and any such concerns are outweighed by Defendant's need for the information.

^{FN6}. In New York, there is no common law right to privacy. See, Cordero v. NYP Holdings, Inc., 20 Misc.3d 1108(A), 866 N.Y.S.2d 90, 2008 WL 2522631 (Sup.Ct. N.Y. Co.2008).

The Fourth Amendment's right to privacy, protects people, not places (see: Katz v. United States, 389 U.S. 347, 88 S.Ct. 507, 19 L.Ed.2d 576 [1967]) (“What a person knowingly exposes to the public, even in his own home or office, is not a subject of Fourth Amendment protection.”) In determining whether a right to privacy exists via the Fourth Amendment, courts apply the reasonableness *433 standard set forth in the concurring opinion of Justice 656 Harlan in Katz: “first that a person have exhibited an actual (subjective) expectation of privacy and, second, that the expectation be one that society is prepared to recognize as reasonable.” Id. at 361, 88 S.Ct. 507, 516 (Harlan, J. concurring) (internal quotations omitted).

New York courts have yet to address whether there exists a right to privacy regarding what one posts on their on-line social networking pages such as Facebook and MySpace. However, whether one has a reasonable expectation of privacy in internet postings or e-mails that have reached their recipients has been addressed by the Second Circuit, which has held that individuals may not enjoy such an expectation of privacy (see: U.S. v. Lifshitz, 369 F.3d 173 [2 Cir.2004] citing Guest v. Leis, 255 F.3d

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388
 (Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

325 [6 Cir.2001]):

Users would logically lack a legitimate expectation of privacy in materials intended for publication or public posting. They would lose a legitimate expectation of privacy in an e-mail that had already reached its recipient; at this moment, the e-mailer would be analogous to a letter-writer whose expectation of privacy ordinarily terminates upon delivery of the letter.”

Likewise, whether one has a reasonable expectation of privacy in e-mails and other writings that have been shared with others, including entries on Facebook and MySpace, has been addressed by the United States District Court of New Jersey, which ordered such entries produced in Beye v. Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey, 06-5337 (D.N.J. December 14, 2007). In this regard, the court stated that “[t]he privacy concerns are far less where the beneficiary herself chose to disclose the information.” As to the entries which had not been shared with others, they were to be preserved. At issue in Beye, were on-line journals and diary entries of minor children who had been denied health care benefits for their eating disorders (see also: Moreno v. Hanford Sentinel Inc., 172 Cal.App.4th 1125, 91 Cal.Rptr.3d 858 (Ct.App. 5 Dist.2009) (no person would have reasonable expectation of privacy where person took affirmative act of posting own writing on MySpace, making it available to anyone with a computer and opening it up to public eye); Dexter v. Dexter, 2007 WL 1532084, 2007 Ohio App LEXIS 2388 (Ohio Ct. App. Portage Co. 2007) (no reasonable expectation of privacy regarding MySpace writings open to public view).

*434 Indeed, as neither Facebook nor MySpace guarantee complete privacy, Plaintiff has no legitimate reasonable expectation of privacy. In this regard, MySpace warns users not to forget that their profiles and MySpace forums are public spaces ^{FN7}, and Facebook’s privacy policy set forth, inter alia, that:

FN7. MySpace General Tips-ht tp:// www.myspace.com/index.cfm?frseaction=cms.veiwpage & placement=safety—pagetips (last visited June 18, 2009).

You post User Content ... on the Site at your own risk. Although we allow you to set privacy options that limit access to your pages, please be aware that no security measures are perfect or impenetrable.

Further that:

When you use Facebook, certain information you post or share with third parties (e.g., a friend or someone in your network), such as personal information, comments, messages, photos, videos ... may be shared with others in accordance with the privacy settings you select. All such sharing of information is done at your own risk. Please keep in mind that if you disclose personal information in you profile or when posting comments, 657 messages, photos, videos, Marketplace listing or other items, this information may become publicly available. ^{FN8}

FN8. Facebook Principles-effective as November 26, 2008—http:// www.facebook.com/policy.php. last viewed June 18, 2009.

Thus, when Plaintiff created her Facebook and MySpace accounts, she consented to the fact that her personal information would be shared with others, notwithstanding her privacy settings. Indeed, that is the very nature and purpose of these social networking sites else they would cease to exist. Since Plaintiff knew that her information may become publicly available, she cannot now claim that she had a reasonable expectation of privacy. As recently set forth by commentators regarding privacy and social networking sites, given the millions of users, “[i]n this environment, privacy is no longer grounded in reasonable expectations, but rather in some theoretical protocol better known as wishful thinking.”^{FN9}

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388

(Cite as: 30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650)

FN9. Dana L. Flemming and Joseph M. Herlihy, Department: Heads Up: What Happens When the College Rumor Mill Goes OnLine? Privacy, Defamation and Online Social Networking Sites, 53 B.B.J. 16 (January/February, 2009).

[9] Further, Defendant's need for access to the information outweighs any privacy concerns that may be voiced by Plaintiff. Defendant has attempted to obtain the sought after information *435 via other means e.g., via deposition and notice for discovery, however, these have proven to be inadequate since counsel has thwarted Defendant's attempt to question Plaintiff in this regard or to obtain authorizations from Plaintiff for the release of this information. The materials including photographs contained on these sites may be relevant to the issue of damages and may disprove Plaintiff's claims. Without access to these sites, Defendant will be at a distinct disadvantage in defending this action.

ORDERED, that Defendant STEELCASE's motion for an Order granting said Defendant access to Plaintiff's current and historical Facebook and MySpace pages and accounts, including all deleted pages and related information, is hereby granted in all respects; and it is further ORDERED, that, within 30 days from the date of service of a copy of this Order, as directed herein below, Plaintiff shall deliver to Counsel for Defendant STEELCASE a properly executed consent and authorization as may be required by the operators of Facebook and MySpace, permitting said Defendant to gain access to Plaintiff's Facebook and MySpace records, including any records previously deleted or archived by said operators; and it is further.

ORDERED, that Counsel for the moving party herein is hereby directed to serve a copy of this order, with Notice of Entry, upon Counsel for all the remaining parties and Non-Party FACEBOOK, within twenty (20) days of the date this order is entered by the Suffolk County Clerk.

N.Y.Sup.,2010.

Romano v. Steelcase Inc.

30 Misc.3d 426, 907 N.Y.S.2d 650, 2010 N.Y. Slip Op. 20388

END OF DOCUMENT